Ladies and Gentlemen;

I am sending this little booklet along to your library with the hope that many of your people who are interested in genealogy will enjoy reading it. Besides that, I am in hopes that somewhere within the State of Michigan lies the answer to who the parents of my LUCY BALDWIN, born Feb. 20, 1806 in Bradford County, Penn. were. (Please see Page Two). I have searched all available published accounts of the Baldwin family (which are numerous), without establishing her parentage. I believe that an AARON BALDWIN figured in her ancestry, for she named a child AARON Nelson FITCH, and there are no Aarons in the Fitch ancestral lines prior to The marriage of Lucy Baldwin to Thomas Nelson Fitch, on either the male or female sides, for several generations back.

The only clue that I have as to who she might have been, is that she and her husband moved to MICHIGAN from Troy, Bradford Co., Penn. after their daughter Martha was born in 1833. Their son, SAMUEL B. A. FITCH was born in Michigan about 1837, but they moved back to Troy before the birth of their fourth child, and second daughter, in 1839. After 1842, and before 1845, they again left Troy, this time settling in Lafayette, Stark Co., Illinois, where Lucy(Baldwin) Fitch died, October 1850. Thomas Nelson Fitch, the widower, stayed on and md. 2nd, May 28, 1851, a Mrs. Clarinda Taylor, a widow, with several ch. He was a Justice of the Peace of Goshen Twp., Stark Co., Ill. for many years.

There must have been a reason for the Fitches to have moved to Michigan in that early day, for it was wild and unsettled in that day, and would have hardly gone there unless they had known someone already there, or had someone of family or friends to accompany them. I believe that Lucy was of the branch of the Baldwin family often referred to as the "Lost Baldwins". They were probably "lost" to their eastern relatives because they moved west into a wild and unsettled Western country....perhaps Michigan. Lucy Baldwin's husband had five sisters and five brothers as follows;

Lydia Fitch(1793-1801); Sarah, 1795, md.(1) Daniel M. Smith, 2nd, Daniel Dunbar; Maria, (1797-1804); Amarilla Thankful(1798-1868), md. Abiram Spaulding; Hannah, md. Samuel Fitch; Lewis Haynes Fitch, md. Polly Maria Root; Andrew M.; Curtis T.; Horace H.; and Stephen H. Fitch, b. 1814, who md. LUCINA MANLY(MANLEY).

Perhaps some of you may recognize the names, above, of one of your own ancestors who came out to Michigan in an early day and thus establish that my Thomas Nelson and Lucy (Baldwin) Fitch came to Michigan with or because of relatives already living within the state. If so, the area they settled in in Michigan may be the very clue that I need to solve this vexing genealogical problem of long standing.

Sincerely yours,

Brian L. Young

INTRODUCTION

The information imparted in this booklet is the result of a life-time interest in who my ancestors were, and where they came from. Those who are familiar with the difficulties encountered in a project of this kind, need not be acquainted with the work involved in gathering together this data, for they no doubt have experienced some of the same troubles themselves, at one time or another. To those, however, who perhaps are just beginning to trace their family tree, or would like to, let me say that I have no short-cut to offer in working out your family lineage. Perseverance is the one attribute that a genealogist must have in order to be successful in his or her quest.

The enclosed data is only a small part of the genealogical and biographical data that I have collected in regard to the families included herein. I purposely did not attempt to include it all, as this booklet is not intended to be a complete biographical record of the families involved. Those records will be published at a later date, when I am satisfied that I have scraped the bottom of the barrel, genealogically.

At the present time, I propose to publish genealogies on the Young, Shay, Shoop/Shupe/Shoup, Fitch, Stockbarger/Stockberger/Stockburger, Addis & Stephens families. I anticipate that the Stephens family will deal mostly with the descendants of Richard Stephens, son of Joshua Stephens, Sr., since much has already been collected and published on the descendants of Richard's brother, Joshua, Jr.

To those who may have occasion to read these pages, and find their own line, connected with mine, or who can add a bit to what I have collected, I would much appreciate hearing from you, so that we may, in time, collect all this family data under one cover, for the benefit of the coming generations.

NOTE: It appears as if all of the author's ancestors who immigrated to this country, did so before the Declaration of Independence, and the above list numbers EIGHTY of those ancestors who; though they may not have all engaged in the hostilities of the war with Great Britain, their very presence in America indicated their desire for political and religious freedom, long before that smoldering desire broke into open revolt in 1776.

He traded a large interest in a wool-en factory in New Jersey to one Munn, of New York City, for 32 quarter sections of Illinois land just before starting, supposing of course, that title would be perfect. He did not receive his deeds until he had prepared to move,-- indeed, until he was in his wagon. No time for examination was had until he was well on his journey, when he found the supposed deeds were only a warranty for one year and no more; the consequence proved an almost total loss. He succumbed to the deadly influence of the malarial atmosphere, incident to the new country. He was a pioneer of the town of Canton, Illinois.

WILLIAM ROBISON/ROBINSON, md. Sept. 3, 1794, Shenandoah Co., Va. (WHO WAS HE?)

BARBARA L. COFFMAN (KAUFFMAN)

Great & Grandson of:

JOHN YOUNG, probably of Prince William Co., Va., perhaps also of Fauquier Co., Va. He prob. d. before 1759 in Va., where he prob. came from Maryland.

CHRISTIAN (SINNETT?), she was probably of the Md. SINNETT family. PROOF WANTED. BENJAMIN HALEY of Spottsylvania Co., Va. in 1772, and as late as 1785. Perh. d.

Accomack Co., Va. in 1787. Perh. of Frederick Co., Va. in 1784.

AGNES (AGATHA) HAWKINS, ment. in guardianship proceedings, also in land transfer of 1784, in Spottsylvania Co., Va.

Rev. MARTIN KNUFFLIN, he appeared in Lancaster Co., Pa. before Oct. 1733. He died in Augusta Co., Va., and his will, written in German, was probated there, May 17, 1749. He knew the blacksmithing trade, and served as a minister to the Hennonites (Quakers). He was the father of DAVID KNUFFLIN, d. 1804.

BARBARA STAUFFER (STOVER), reported by some sources, to have been the dau. of JACOB STOVER The Pioneer, whose first wife was SARAH BOONE, aunt of Col. DANIEL BOONE of Ky., although absolute proof has not been found. Daniel Stover, who is purported to have been a son of this Jacob Stover, and who is an ancestor of Dwight D. Eisenhower, was one of three men who made the inventory of Martin Kauffman's estate in 1749, so it would seem that his wife was at least closely related to Daniel Stover, probably a sister.

JOSEPH STRICKLER, born Sept. 1, 1731, d. April, 1795. There is evidence that JOSEPH served in the Revolutionary War. His name appears on a roll of a company under the command of Michael Rader(Reader). He served the cause of American Independence by supplying the Continental Army with beef, as is evidenced by several vouchers issued in his name for said supplies. He, with his brothers, John, Jacob, and Benjamin, were some of the Massanutten, Virginia, settlers, who rode all the way to Winchester by horseback, in order to vote for Colonel George Washington, on July 24, 1758, when he ran for the House of Burgesses from Frederick County, and was elected. In this election, Colonel Washington was not present, being away with the army. This was the year when the whole frontier was aflame from Indian Massacres, and Braddock's defeat. Joseph md. twice, but it is uncertain from various accounts of which was his first wife, and which was his 2nd wife. He evidently had ch. by both Barbara and Miss Stickley.

EPHRAIM DRAKE, b. Feb. 17, 1732, d. 1797, prob. N. J. He was a soldier of the Rev. War. He married,

ANNE ASHER (WHO WAS SHE?)

DOROTHY (Dolly) LONDON, b. Jan. 14, 1743, d. Oct. 1, 1839.

ROBERT COLVER, Jr., b. 1740, d. 1814/15. Will dtd. Apr. 29, 1793, proved, May 18, 1815, in N. J. His wife was;

MARTHA (WHO WAS SHE?)

Captain SIMON ADDIS, b. Dec. 30, 1745, d. Jun. 23, 1834, Six Mile Run, Somerset Co., N. J. He served as Sgt., Capt, William Williamson's Company, Col. No. 895 for depreciation of his continental pay in the Middlesex County Militia, amounting to L6 6d, dtd. June 10, 1784 - during the Revolutionary War. He was md. 3 times, his 1st wife died young, was the mother of his oldest child. He and his wife, Mariah, are buried in the Elm Ridge Cemetery, Franklin Park, Somerset Co., N. J.

Rev. MICHAEL "The Pioneer" KNUFFLIEN; seems to have immigrated to America abt. 1717, settled in Chester Co., Pa. (later Lancaster Co.), d. 1718. Some accounts say his origin was Grunstadt, Hesse, upper Rhine River, Germany.

ANNA KNEISLEY, b. 1688, d. June 24, 1758, age 70.

ABRAHAM "The Pioneer" STRICKLER, he was from the City of Zurich in Switzerland, the exact date of his arrival in America has not been recorded, but it is known that his brother, CONRAD, founder of the Pennsylvania branch of the family, came to America about the year 1705, and it is thought that Abraham was here at least that early. CONRAD & ABRAHAM were supposed to have had two brothers who came to America with them, but their names are unknown. ABRAHAM was a weaver by trade, and was adept at the business, it is said. He could weave any figure or draft known to the trade. He wove a table cloth with figures representing a plate, knife and fork and spoon inside the border at each place around the table cloth, and it is said that he used as many as 16 treadles in his loom in weaving some figures. ABRAHAM was one of eight settlers who petitioned in 1733 to have title confirmed to land they bought of Jacob Stover in 1729 or 1730 in Massanutten, proving that he was one of the very earliest settlers of this region. The Stricklers, the story is told, knew the location of a silver mine in the adjacent Massanutten Mountains, and would occasionally make horseback trips to the Philadelphia mint, carrying silver ingots in their saddle bags. According to the story, these Stricklers learned the location of this silver mine from the Indians; however, from another source, the author of this sketch, came across another story of how one of JOHN LEYENBERGER's sons; while hiking in these same mountains with two young friends, became lost, and was obliged to spend the night in the mountains. During their wanderings, they picked up several pieces of ore that glittered, and the next day when they found their way back home, showed them to their parents. It proved to be rich silver-ore, but try as the LIONBERGERS (LEYENBERGERS) could, they never again could find the spot where the boys picked up the ore. This same JOHN LEYENBERGER, whose son was lost, is a maternal ancestor of mine, and it is shown that these two families (the STRICKLERS and LIONBERGERS) were close neighbors and friends by the fact that JOHN LEYENBERGER was one of the sureties for PETER RUFFNER, ABRAHAM STRICKLER's Administrator, and brother-in-law. One cannot help but wonder if one of the other two boys on this outing had not been one of the STRICKLER boys, and the STRICKLERS had better luck re-locating the place the silver-ore was picked up.

ABRAHAM STRICKLER's will was proven in Augusta County, Virginia, 1746.

MARY RUFFNER, wife of the above, was the sister of PETER "The Pioneer" RUFFNER, founder of the family by that name in America, and came to America with her brother. Only daughter of a German baron, who owned large landed estates in the kingdom of Hanover. In religion, Peter was a Protestant of the Martin Luther school, so we may assume that his sister, MARY, was likewise of that belief. I have found no record of Mary's exact birth and death date.

This led to erroneously assumptions by some, that these children's were John Addis's, and that John's wife was a daughter of Simon Wyckoff, because they were named in his will as his grandchildren. RICHARD predeceased his wife, but she apparently soon followed in death.

SUSANNAH WYCKOFF. We know her to be a dau. of SIMON WYCKOFF, as SIMON mentioned his ADDIS grandchildren in his will. Great-grandson, SIMON ADDIS was his name-sake.

He returned to Va. after the Revolution, and is buried in Edom Mennonite Church, near Linville, Rockingham Co., Va.

BARBARA HALDILLAN, d. Feb. 24, 1764.

JEAN LEYENBERGER (JOHN LYONBERGER), an immigrant from Alsace-Lorraine. He was a Mennonite (Quaker). He was probably the HANS LYINBURGER, age 50, who was imported in the ship, "Ballinder Oliver", Samuel Merchant, Master, who qualified at the Court House of Philadelphia, August 26, 1735. At that time, it showed that there also was a Lizarberth Lyinburger, age 45 (prob. his wife), and children, Hans, 25; Hannah, 3; Lizarberth, 20; Barberry, 14; and Peter, 8. This closely follows the known names of our immigrant subject, although in later years his wife was referred to as BARBARA. I am inclined to believe that this is the same wife who immigrated with him as German women often had two names, and used them interchangeably.

HENRY SHUPE, b. circa 1704, purported from records obtained from family members, to have come to America from Heidelberg, Baden, Germany, but the date of his coming is not recorded. Family tradition has been that several SHUPE brothers came to America, and from the immigration records, it is believed that he arrived in this country on or about the years 1728-1730. He settled in Westmoreland county, Penn., where he died, 1788, leaving a family. The name of his wife is not immediately available to the author of this sketch. He was the father of JOHN, above-mentioned.

JOSHUA STEPHENS, Sr., referred to earlier on Page Six of this narrative. He was the son of STEPHENS AP EVANS, the name now being changed; lived in what is now Berks co., Pa., probably in Union Twp., near his brother, David Ap Stephens. Born in Wales, he was the immigrant ancestor of this family, having come to this country with his two brothers, Ebenezer and David. At the date that JOSHUA settled in Berks County, it was a "howling wilderness", full of Indians and wild beasts. Neighbors were few and far between, and their visits were like Angel's visits. Family tradition is that the Boones and the Stephens inter-married. Daniel Boone often visited the home of Joshua Stephens, Jr., and upon these occasions, he often referred to Joshua as "cousin". The exact relationship does not appear in the records in the hands of the present generation.

FREDERICK SLEMP of the County of Wyeth, State of Virginia, whose will, dtd. Feb. 17, 1807, was proved in the June 1807 term of Wyeth County Court. His wife was,
MARY _____, named in his will along with four sons and five daughters.

STEPHENS AP EVANS, lived and died in Wales, and was owner of considerable estate. The liberal terms of Penn's grant in America attracted the attention of his three sons, who left their native home in Wales, and embarking in a sailing vessel, after a voyage of something like 30 days, landed in Philadelphia, sometime prior to the year 1733. The three brothers selected lands in what is now Berks county, which was not set off from Philadelphia county until 1752. There are traces of them in Union Township, where a David Stephens held land in 1728; he was probably the son of our subject. In 1752, a David Stephens, Jr. died in Britain Twp., Bucks Co., not far from Union, who had a brother, Samuel, and a cousin John. It was while the three brothers, JOSHUA, Ebenezer and David were living under the jurisdiction of Philadelphia county, that they received their share of the Welsh estate. Hence, search for this should be confined to records prior to 1752, the time Berks was set off from Philadelphia county.

STEPHEN CLARK, b. Dec. 24, 1680 in New Haven, Conn., md. Nov. 26, 1702 in New Haven, and became the father of ANNE CLARK referred to on Page Six of this narrative. He died, 1741.
